145 We publish in another column the new platform. It is the one put forward by the organ of the self-styled American party at Washington and it is said, by telegraphic reports, to have been adopted at Philadelphia. The editor of the Journal is delighted with it. It is all that the South desires-a great improvement on the twelfth plank. The Southern members at l'hiludelphia have made a desperato struggle against it, but the editor of the Journal is more than satisfied. This is easily accounted for. The editor is an Aboli tionist, and is deligated with anything that suit them. It will be seen that the sixth section means nothing, and that the seventh, if it means anything at all in reference to slavery, is the doc trine of squatter sovereignty, against which the editor has been raving for some time. The people of the Perritories are to frame their own Constitu tion and LaW, and to regulate their domestic and somal effairs in their own mode. One would sup pose, if the section meant anything, it meant allow the resilents in the Territory to settle th question of slavery for themselves, in regulatin, their domestic affairs. This is squatter sovereig ty, and this is the most horrible doctrine for to South that ever was published, according to the editor of the Journal.

But the fact is, the section means nothing at al on the subject of seavery, and the Abelicion Know Nothings know it means nothing on that subject the Southern men in the Convention see it mean nothing, or they would not denounce and vo: against it. Read the thirteenth section, and you will see that one of the crimes of the present Ad ministration, for which the brethren are fiercely opposed to it, is that it has repealed the Missour compromise set. By that act Congress prohibited slavery in Kansas and Nebraska. It was an of stacle in the way of the people making their own Constitution and laws, and regulating their own affairs, as far as slavery is concerned; and the brethren are thomselves opposed to the presen Administration for giving the people of the Territory their rights, by repealing the Missouri com promise act. If anything about slavery is mean in the seventh section, it is stultified by the thir teenth. The brothren North will restore the Mis souri line; it is fully implied, for its ropeal is de nounced.

Read, furthermore, the last section. They ar to eschew all sectional questions. Procisely so the sectional question is that of slavery, and the brethren are to oscher it in their party action. If the seventh section means anything about siavery it is to be eschewed.

The platform is a juggle-a cunningly devise chest. The Abolition Know-Nothings go hom and tell their constituents-" You see we have denounced the repeal of the Missouri compromisand wa will restore it. We agree that the people of the Territory shall make their own laws, an regulate their own demostic affairs, but we mea nothing about slavery in that resolution, for that is a sectional question, which, by a distinct resolution, is eschewed." Honest Southern men at Philadelphia see how it is. They see that their Northern allies have freed themselves from all obligations to them on the mavery questlen by

The twelfth plank was a very different affair. It bound the brethren to stand by past legislation provise in reference to any Territory.

The reader will see that every obligation of the sort is swept away; that good Know-Nothing: can new includes their Abolition proclivities to any extent. The repeal of the twelfth plank is significant to all men of sense. Tuere is no longer any restraint upon the brethren in Congress on this subject. The Banks Know-Nothings are now as sound in the faith, according to the platform, as any of the brethren.

We are not surprised that the editor of the Journal is pleased with the platform at Philadelphia. It suits him, as well as the rest of the Abolitionists. No croed on the slavery question-so that the majority may do as they please, is his dectrine. He knows what they will do. This Congress is the fruit of just such juggling on that

After all the ravings of the editor of the Journal about equatier sovereignty, he came out yesterday morning in a lauistion of it, as con tained in the new platform. The seventh section refers to slavery, by the editor's own interpretation; and if it does, it is that horrid squatter sovereignty itself in all its deformity. What wiin his renders say now? The Twelfth Section Expunged

Mr. Reynolds, of New York, moved for an open rganization, which was laid over.

Platform, adopted in Juno hat, was neither pro-posed by the South, nor sanctioned by the North; refore be it. Resolved, That the said section is hereby to be on the substitute offered by Mr. Browster, agreed to an amendment, which would be presented by Mr. Ely, as follows: That on the subject of slavery, we are guided by the principles and proisions of the Constitution, yielding ne more and ng no less. Underwood, of Ky., was in favor of passing over this matter for the present, as the South was not well represented here.

Mr. Brewster was opposed to passing over the specific purpose for which the Council was called.

plause]. And it is due to the maniness of the South to say that they are willing to meet it, and and one Southern man is restly to move the previous question at the earliest possible moment in order to bring it to a vote. I will be second to none in advocating union and harmony, but I will stand here until this matter is settled. Representing the North and West he would be considered.

The Secretary then read the resolution to strike ut the twelfth section, &c. out the twelfth section, &c.

Mr. Liy thought the Order had no right to interfere with the subject of slavery any more than the Friemasons could fix the religious faith of their members. He thought the twelfth section was about and impertinent, and that no Northern and could stand upon it. No Northern State could stand upon it. He was in favor of striking it out, and adopting the constitution of the United States as the platform of the party, to stand upon its principles and provisions. It we cannot agree upon this, our case is hopeless. He only desired that the South would stand simply on the constitution, then each State could interpret it according to its hen each State could interpret it according to its we ideas. Mr. Liy would be glad to see the ach State to arrange business for the Council. Mr. Burr then made a speech in favor of squatter sovereignty and opposed to the agitation of the slavery question. So he was instructed by one of he strongest Freesoil districts in the State of New York. He thought the Northern States were n favor of leaving the slavery question as it was.
